Neil says:” The Imagine project is committed to empowering and equipping people to live as missional people in all of their lives – wherever they may be. This approach to discipleship has caught the attention of denominations and networks across the UK and increasingly overseas. It has a strong appeal because it recognises the vital significance of healthy gathered church, but also liberates people for their own frontlines in life. Church leaders begin to see ministry differently; worshippers see their own lives differently; a watching world begins to recognise that there are followers of Jesus who are good news. It’s about giving everyone new eyes to see. It’s not a programme, it’s a perspective”.
